COUNTRY HOUSE

VEEN, THE NETHERLANDS

This Country house with English and French influences is designed by Dutch architect Friso Woudstra. The staircase blends in perfectly and creates a grand entrance.

Made of oak wood and decorated with a runner in the same color as the hallway. Each bar is carefully finished by hand for optimal detailed craftsmanship.

LOUBOUTIN

AMSTERDAM, THE NETHERLANDS

Based on the famous Louboutin shoes, this staircase in Amsterdam takes design to another level. Two platforms, black steel balusters and handrail, and steps in two different colors. The top side is stained black and the bottom fierce red laquered. The oak wooden steps are assembled in the design without visible connections.

RENAISSANCE

OOSTERBEEK, THE NETHERLANDS

For this design we were inspired by the big stone Renaissance staircases. We built it out of wood and it is absolutely unique in the Netherlands. The size is immense; the stringers are a massive 17 cm thick, and the railing that is placed on top of the bars is 17 cm wide. We made huge main balusters and other balusters. Everything is made of mahogany, sprayed in black and finished on site with lacquer.

- We created a grand balustrade in the same style.

- The panelling of the entire area and the LED lights are also done by Van Bruchem Staircases.

NINE STAIRS

DORDRECHT, THE NETHERLANDS

This design started very classical, but finally ended in a more distinctive look with steel fencing, right in line with the special villa.

With nine staircases in total this design belongs to one of our most prominent and remarkable projects. From above, the fluent curved shapes, executed in mahogany, create a modern and organic look.

RESIDENCE

RENKUM, THE NETHERLANDS

A modern but warm design; white sprayed oak and completed with a satin laque finish. The closed rampart with oval handrail curls nicely up. Extra thick steps create a more robust appearance. For an extra effect in the evening, we mounted lighting in the wall of the staircase.

A nice touch is that the staircase runs along an indoor window, overlooking the kitchen.

FLOW

DRIEBERGEN, THE NETHERLANDS

The design of the wrought iron bars creates a lot of motion while looking from different angles. From top to bottom, the steel top rail of the balustrade follows the handrail, all the way to an elegant curl around the main baluster. Made of oak wood, sprayed and finished on site with lacquer.

On special request we designed two extra staircases in the same style; one for the first floor and one in the library.

DE VALK

BATHMEN, THE NETHERLANDS

A modern and clean design of oak wood, that without visible joints is mounted in the stone wall. With a simple and modern steel handrail that continues on the first floor into the railing.
