7 STAIR TRENDS 2025

2025: Navigating Dualities

In general we're diving the next year headfirst into a world of exciting contradictions: Outside vs Inside, Minimalism vs Maximalism, Artificial Intelligence vs Real Life. Brands and designers are navigating this landscape of dualities. So, how do we steer through it all? By embracing transformation and finding that perfect balance, we can create work that truly resonates on both personal and practical levels.

7 Trends

1.Organic Shapes
2.Outside vs Inside
3.Multifunctional design
4.Midimalism
5. Contrasting Materials
6. LED there be light
7. Transparency

1.Organic shapes

Architecture and design draw significant inspiration from nature, and this fluid trend continues to thrive in 2025. The Spiral staircase exemplifies how natural curves come to life. For who appreciate organic, round shapes, this staircase is the perfect choice.

2. Outside versus Inside

Integrating nature into your home is a powerful design choice. Imagine the striking impact of a tree or plant alongside your staircase—it's a bold statement.

We're also seeing a strong trend of materials like beechwood, teak, bamboo, and other woods transitioning from the outdoors to elevate interior spaces, making them truly exceptional.

4.Midimalism

The Minimalism trend still conquers the design world in 2025. It's all about crafting open spaces and sleek lines, but this year, adding an exciting twist of maximalism flair. Get ready for MIDImalism, where we find the perfect harmony between these two styles. Expect a clean and tranquil aesthetic that bursts with personality, thanks to striking statement pieces and vibrant colors.

5. Contrasting materials

Timeless elements seamlessly blend with modern design. The combination of chrome and steel alongside natural stone, glass, and wood creates a captivating contrast that heightens its appeal, adding a playful and intriguing atmosphere to any room in the house or building.
